

Furnas/Harlan Partnership Meeting August 13th, 2002

- Twin Valleys Public Power District sponsored a well-attended economic development meeting at Southern Valley High School on Tuesday evening, August 13. In an effort to seek means of turning around the trend of resources flowing out of the area rather than coming in, more than 70 very interested participants were in attendance.
- Ken Johnson, Twin Valleys' manager, welcomed the group and discussed the format for the evening's meeting.
- Rick Nelsen, an Economic Development Consultant with the Nebraska Public Power District, showed the pictorial and graphic results of previous surveys.
- Linda Fettig and Tara Hosick, Development Consultants with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, presented more statistics regarding the two county region and discussed some of the related meetings across the state.
- Another economic development meeting is scheduled on September 24 at the Southern Valley High School.
- This is an opportunity to join other Furnas/Harlan County concerned residents in exploring avenues of positive economic possibilities.
